HOME TOWN DISCOVERY?

Four or five years ago when gasoline and rubber tires were as easy to buy as a loaf of bread, we thought nothing of jumping into the family car and driving a 20 or 30 mile roundtrip for shopping or entertainment.

Pearl Harbor changed that.

But since our travels have been limited we have discovered a good many things right in our own community that we once went miles to get. Our local explorations have revealed that the home town shops are well equipped to satisfy our needs.

Snice World War I the forward strides in mass production and multiple-unit distribution have broken through the one-time isolation of smaller communities. Today their stores can compete on even terms with metropolitan shops in bargains, in quality and in variety of stock.

Progressive independent and chain retailing has put the smaller town and city on the main lines of distribution, and is proving itself a real ally to these communities as the enforced decline in motor travel makes shopping at home a practical necessity as well as a patriotic duty.

Yes, we don't travel as much as we used to, but we have learned that our own pastures are just as green as the other fellow's.

GIVING YOUTH A SHARE

Tomorrow belongs to the youth of today. They will be the leaders of the post-war generation. If we are to have a better tomorrow we must give youth a greater share in today. As they are given increased opportunity to share in the problems now before us, they will be more able to cope with the tasks yet to come.

Fortunately, youth is being given that opportunity.

In the military field, young men are assuming important roles in the planning and directing of our battle for world freedom.

Two Brigadier Generals in the United States Army are under 30 years of age. Many high ranking officers have yet to reach 40. Even our top man—General Eisenhower—is young for such a responsible post.

In the business world, the contribution which young men and women can make is becoming more widely appreciated and utilized.

So, today youth is on the march both on the battle front and the home front. Their spontaneity, imagination and daring are being made more effective through the wisdom that is born of experience.

Their contributions to the present will help build a better future both for themselves and for the generations yet to come.

PEARL HARBOR TO SAIPAN

On the evening of December 7, 1941, a Japanese Vice-Admiral stood on the deck of his flagship somewhere in the Pacific west of the Hawaiian Islands. He was very happy. All day long reports had been coming in of the havoc and destruction wrought on the American fleet in Pearl Harbor by the planes from his task force in their infamous sneak attack.

The Admiral was satisfied that the American battle fleet in the Pacific had been knocked out for keeps. It would take many, many months, or even years, for the United States to restore its fighting strength. Before that time, Japanese forces would have taken Hawaii and moved on to attack the Pacific Coast. America was soft. It would quickly collapse.

If the happy Admiral had been told on that December day that just 31 months later he would be killed by American troops landing on Saipan island, it is quite likely that his flat face would have cracked into a broad, toothy grin and he would have said in the Japanese equivalent, "Quit kidding."

On December 7, 1941, the thought of an American fleet strong enough to attack and capture Saipan within the next three years or the next ten years bordered on the fringe of lunacy.

But fate has a way of doing preposterous things. In mid-July 1944, the capture of Saipan was history. So was the death of one Vice-Admiral Chuichi Nagumo, commander of the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, who died for Hirohito and the defense of Saipan.

Could it be, however, that the Admiral was not killed by American guns but died of fright when he saw the "ghost" of the Pearl Harbor fleet rise out of the Pacific and stalk the man who "destroyed" it?

READING & WRITING

BY Edwin Seaver AND Robin McKown

Thomas Mann's latest novel, "Joseph the Provider," the July Book-of-the-Month Club selection, marks the end of a monumental undertaking by this celebrated author.

THOMAS MANN

Back in 1926, an artist in Munich, where Mann was then living, asked him to write an introduction to a portfolio of illustrations depicting the story of Joseph, the son of Jacob. He looked up the story in an old family Bible, and experienced what he describes as "an indescribable fascination" towards his subject. Subsequently Mann made archaeological excursions to Egypt and Palestine, revisiting the places where the story of Joseph is laid.

As a result of his researches and meditations, he wrote "Joseph and His Brothers," "Young Joseph," "Joseph in Egypt" and now the last of this great tetralogy, "Joseph the Provider."

"Joseph the Provider" begins when Joseph is a slave in the Pharaoh's palace, up until he becomes the ruler of economic life of Egypt, second only to the Pharaoh himself. Mr. Mann also retells here the biblical story of how Joseph's brothers came down into Egypt, and how Joseph finally revealed himself to them in one of the most famous recognition scenes in literature. "This is probably one of the lasting novels of our decade," says Dr. Henry Seidel Canby, in the Book-of-the-Month Club News.

* * *

Thomas Mann's first great literary success was "Buddenbrooks," published when the author was twenty-nine. It's said that his publishers balked at receiving this huge and unwieldy manuscript by an obscure young author. Cut it in half, they urged. Mann refused. Eventually they yielded and published it in two expensive volumes. At first the book seemed doomed to failure. Critics resented its size; the public resented its price. But after the first edition of a thousand was sold out, the publisher re-issued it in a cheaper volume. It began to sell, and the young author was snitched up in a whirlwind of success. Until it was burned and banned by Hitler, "Buddenbrooks" sold over a million copies in Germany alone; it has been translated into almost every modern language.

* * *

After Mann's first open attack on the Nazis, in 1936, he was deprived of German citizenship. In reply he wrote a scorching denunciation of fascism published all over the non-fascist world, "An Exchange of Letters." In 1938 Thomas Mann came to the United States, and three years ago he built a permanent home in Santa Monica, California, where he still carries on a strict routine of work, spending his mornings in creative writing, and his afternoons in correspondence. He will soon become an American citizen.

How to bake a fruit pie easily

THIS TIME of year, with delicious fresh fruits available, all of us want to make use of them in as many different ways as possible. And one good way is in pies!

Even the pastry can be made on an easy summer-time schedule. Here's a suggestion: make a double batch of your favorite pastry recipe, putting it together in the "cool of the morning." What you don't use immediately can be left dry, or moistened and wrapped in waxed paper, before placing it in the refrigerator. It's no more work than making a single batch, and the next time .... there's the pastry all ready to use for tarts or turnovers or other fresh fruit delicacies!

Fresh fruit pies are simple to make. Here's a recipe for example, which can be used with peaches, plums, cherries, rhubarb, berries, or a combination of fruits:

FRESH FRUIT PIE

3 to 4 cups of cleaned whole berries or sliced fresh fruit
1 to 1½ cups sugar
3 tbsps. flour
⅛ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. butter or margarine
Pastry

Prepare fruit, combine dry ingredients and add, adjusting amounts of sugar and flour depending upon fruit's sweetness and juiciness; mix thoroughly. Line pie plate with pastry, and fill with fruit mixture; dot with butter or margarine. Cut slits in top crust; place over pie, crimping edges. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 10 minutes; reduce heat to moderate oven (350° F.) and continue baking 20 to 30 minutes or until done. (1 to 2 tbsps. of lemon juice will bring out the flavor in bland fruit.

OPA Rolls Back Canned Meat Price

A rollback of approximately 10 per cent in the price of canned meat from wholesale through retail levels, will be effective nationwide, August 4, the Office of Price Administration announced today.

This new action establishes flat wholesale prices for several semi-sterile canned pork products, which are defined as products which require some refrigeration during the marketing process.

Typical of highest prices which will be found in San Francisco stores on some canned meat items are: canned whole hams, skinless, smoked or unsmoked—56c per pound; spiced luncheon meat, 3 pound size—44c per pound; spiced ham, 3 pound size—46c per pound; boneless dressed ham—46c per pound.

These reductions, which will follow reductions at processor and wholesale levels, follow the approximate 10 per cent reduction made over a year ago in meat prices, but which have just now been extended to canned meats.

The amount of canned meat now available for the domestic trade is dependent upon the allotment of tin plate by the War Production Board. It is estimated that the total canned meat production for 1944 will closely approximate the 1941 production. This increase in production necessitates the more effective means of price control found in the dollar and cents type of control which will be inaugurated, August 4.

FORMAL DINNER SCENES this coming season will be brightened with beaded, pastel overblouses requiring no jewelry but effectively set off with contrasting flower accompaniments, as CBS singer Dale ("Jack Carson Show") Evans illustrates. Worn with long or short skirts, the simple molded line is flattering invitation to more dressy occasions.

JOIN WAC

Three hundred American women residing in England have enlisted in the Women's Army Corps and are now receiving basic training prior to duty assignment in the European Theatre of Operations, the director of the Ninth Service Command WAC branch announced today.

WAVES in Action . . . Teaching Gunnery

OFFICIAL U. S. NAVY PHOTOGRAPH

Seated in turrets identical to those they will occupy as gunners on warplanes, Navy men are now being taught by Navy women (WAVES) to shoot 50-calibre machine guns with deadly accuracy. Wearing headphones linking her to the pupil in the turret, the WAVE expert—officially Specialist (G)—sits at the rear of the turret, observes the spraying of bullets on the high-speed target and corrects the marksmanship of the gunner. Shown above is one of the many training turrets in use at the Naval Air Gunners School at Hollywood, Fla. This is only one of the vital jobs done by WAVES. Navy Recruiting Stations and Offices of Naval Officer Procurement have full information about the Navy for young women between 20 and 36 and without children under 18.
